

COOKIE POLICY

We use cookies on our website(s) in order to provide you better service through our properly secure and safe web pages. Cookies are computer files that hold small quantities of information. Your computer, smart phone or other internet enabled device carries these cookies when you visit some of the web pages on our websites. You are however able to remove these cookies when you change your web browser internet preferences. Thus by using our website you accept our use of cookies on your device.

There are several important reasons why cookies may be placed on your computer and without which your experience as a web user will be very poor and uninteresting.

Here are some of those reasons we may use cookies on your device:

When your computer needs to rapidly fetch a page

Some cookies assist your computer in displaying the information you are seeking when you regularly visit a web page. These performance enhancing cookies do not hold any information that identifies you. They are clearly anonymous.

When you are securely logged on to restricted web pages

Some cookies are more or less unavoidable as they enable you gain access to certain web pages that are specifically for your viewership when you log on. These cookies help maintain your browsing sessions upon log on.

Further details about how we use any personal information we gather can be found on our Privacy Policy